What would you do with some extra time?

June kicks off the summer season, bringing you longer days and more sunlight. With the additional daylight comes more time for you to accomplish various tasks around the house you may have been putting off.

Though many people may try to DIY their summer to-do-list, some things are best left for professionals.

Roof Inspection or Replacement

Summer is a great time to schedule a roof inspection. We'll inspect your roof for signs of damage from severe weather, including your eaves, fascia, flashing, ridge vent, gutters and downspouts. If we find any problems, we'll talk them over with you on how to get them corrected.

If you're needing your entire roof replaced, our skilled professionals will help you choose the best style and color that will give you a roof you'll love for years to come.

Request Service

By hiring a local professional roofer to perform maintenance tasks and repairs to your home, you'll be able to use those extra daylight hours to unwind after long days at work. You'll be able to exercise outdoors, read a book or magazine on the patio, and spend more time with family and friends. We'll make sure that roof maintenance tasks are completed successfully so your house and property remain in good condition all summer long.

What else could you do?

Check out these other popular summertime projects that probably don't need the help of a professional.

- Cleaning the grill
- Routine lawn mower maintenance
- Pest control
- Cleaning the bathroom and kitchen drains
- Dusting ceiling fan blades
- Cleaning baseboards
- Replacing the HVAC filter
- Mulching the garden
- Checking smoke and carbon monoxide detectors
- Inspecting the deck for wood rot, water damage, and disrepair
- Washing windows and glass doors
